

Nicole Bauer

An eating disorder doesn't just rob you of your mental health, but it affects your physical health as well. Nurses on the eating disorder unit are so important for us to learn to live again. But Nicole isn't just a nurse. Nicole is always interacting with the residents and staff. She always goes above and beyond, making sure that everyone has what they need.

I felt like I could tell Nicole anything. She is such a good listener...and I tell a lot of stories! People are drawn to her for her bright personality and contagious laughter. She is a comfortable presence. I take a while to warm up to people, but she always made it easy to be transparent and be myself. Nicole was vital to my recovery. Nicole is bright and she helped me to become bright again too.

One of the hardest things I've ever done is go to treatment, but Nicole makes it easier by finding ways to smile and laugh through the hard days. Nicole took great care of me, and I will always wish her the best. I am so lucky to have been cared for by her.

Haley White

Since joining our team, Haley has brought so much positivity to her role. She is always willing to answer questions from residents and treatment teams. She really goes above and beyond to care for our residents.

When the unit was on COVID isolation, Haley took residents on walks to ensure they got fresh air and time to check in with nursing. That made such a difference in the communication around resident care during that time.

Haley is always ready to learn and improve too, which shows in the questions she asks and the ways she supports the other members of the team.

Kaylee Schleicher

Kaylee has gone above and beyond for her patients and for her co-workers. Kaylee has stayed past her scheduled hours on numerous occasions to help patients with medication questions or to enter medications into the system for supportive living patients. Kaylee has supported the Silver Lake building by staying late or answering questions they have had over weekends.

Kaylee has been an inspirational sounding board for co-workers when they are having down days or are feeling overwhelmed. All this despite being extremely busy herself and willing to put that aside to support her peers when in need.

Patients at our clinic have often gone out of their way to tell their therapists how kind and caring she is towards them as well. Often writing these comments in surveys and through our clinic's Rock STAR recognition program.

She does all of this without complaints or resentment. She fully embodies the Roger's spirit, attitude and dedication to our patients, peers and community overall.
